1.(C) The prospective arrest of the major "Don" Christopher "Dudus" Coke, who is wanted for extradition to face narcotics and arms trafficking charges in New York (reftel A), could ignite civil unrest in West Kingston, Spanish Town, and Montego Bay, according to the Government of Jamaica (GoJ)'s Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs and Foreign Trade, Dr. Kenneth Baugh. Speaking in the course of a private meeting on Sept. 10, in response to EmbOff's inquiry regarding the extradition request, Baugh reiterated GoJ concerns that, over the years, Coke's wealth and influence have become "deeply ingrained" in the Jamaican society and economy (reftels B-E). Because of the severe economic crisis afflicting the country, at present Coke's pervasive power was particularly dangerous: with high unemployment, labor union discontent, and signs of civil unrest already present (reftels F-H), his arrest could "spark off" this volatile mix. Nevertheless, Baugh assured EmbOff, the GoJ would "meet its obligations under the Extradition Treaty," although "due process" would have to be followed. (Comment: Baugh did not offer a specific timeframe. His concerns of possible civil unrest did not strike EmbOff as a mere pretext for GoJ delay in arresting Coke; on the contrary, his fears are well-founded. End Comment.)
